10:00 - 11:00	TABLE RONDE / PANEL DISCUSSION CLIMATE CHANGE IS ALREADY FUELING MIGRATION
	Climate refugees refer to those who have been forced to flee their homes due to the impacts of climate change, either sudden extreme weather events or from gradual changes to their environment such as sea level rise. This panel brings together experts to tackle the intersection between climate change and migration from different perspectives. The role of climate change on migration, policies, people and proposed solutions will be discussed in order to understand the current global response to climate migration, to identify potential gaps in current legal framework, to learn about the work being done to adjust to this increasingly frequent phenomenon and to inform public opinion and build consensus on the pressing issues. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Patrick Cloos, Ph.D., Université de Montréal Professor • Robert McLeman, Ph.D., Wilfrid Laurier University Professor
